

Supplementary Material

Lin Teng¹, Zihao Zhao¹, Jiawei Huang¹, Zehong Cao², Runqi Meng¹, Feng Shi², and Dinggang Shen^{1,2,3}

¹ School of Biomedical Engineering & State Key Laboratory of Advanced Medical Materials and Devices, ShanghaiTech University, Shanghai 201210, China

² Shanghai United Imaging Intelligence Co., Ltd. Shanghai 200230, China
feng.shi@uii-ai.com

³ Shanghai Clinical Research and Trial Center, Shanghai 201210, China
dgshen@shanghaitech.edu.cn

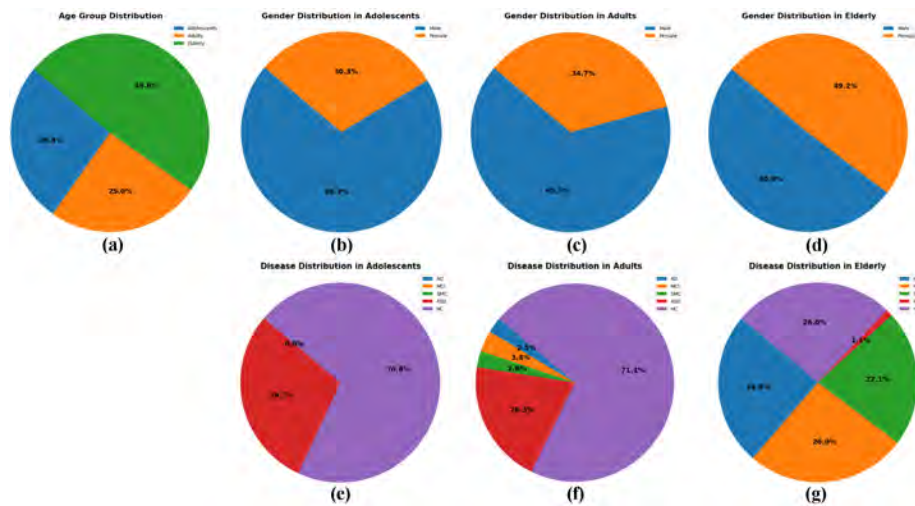

Fig. 1: Detailed analysis of different age groups. (a): Age distribution. (b), (c), and (d): Gender distribution in Adolescents, Adults, and Elderly, respectively. (e), (f), and (g): Disease distribution in Adolescents, Adults, and Elderly, respectively.

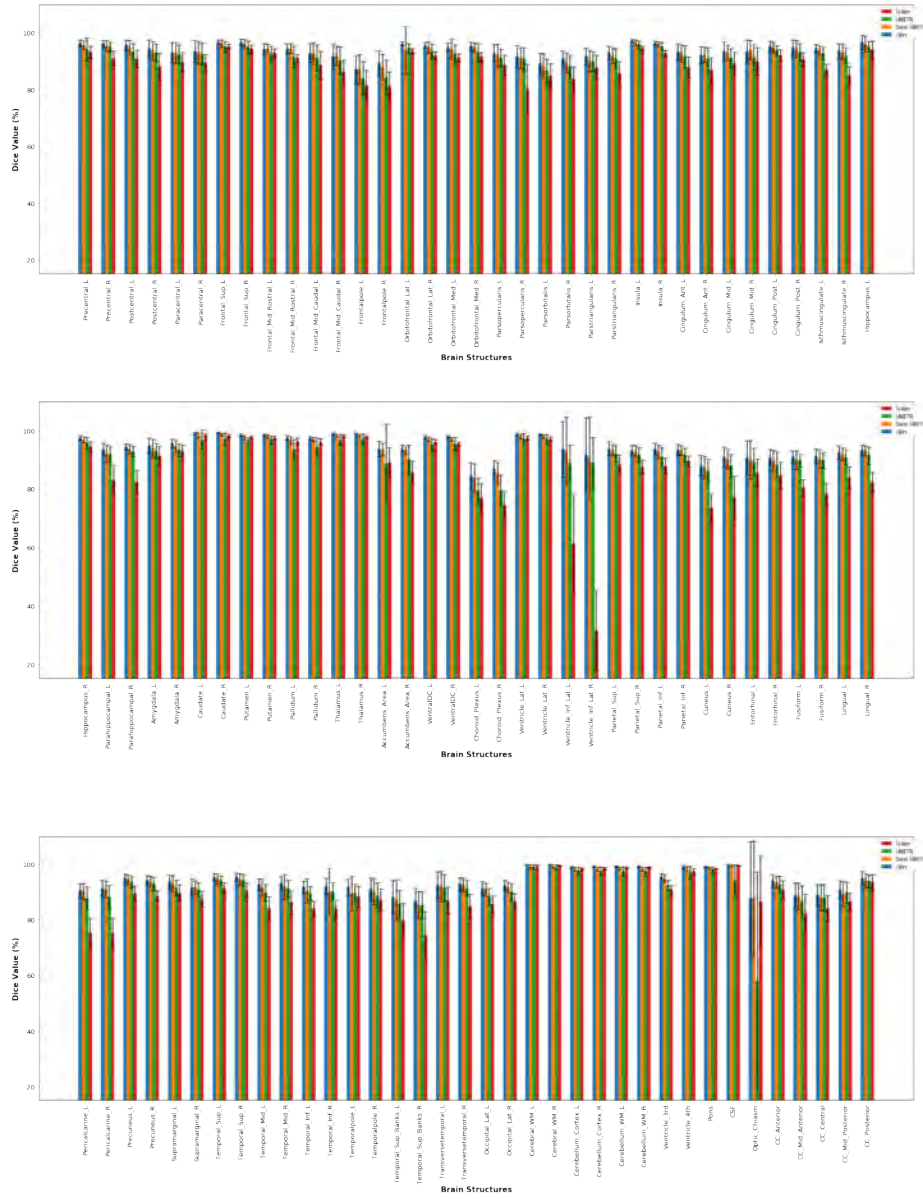

Fig. 2: Average Dice Similarity Coefficient (DSC) of 106 brain structures for different methods. The bars represent the average DSC, and the error bars represent the standard deviation. Each color represents a different method. "L" and "R" denote left and right, respectively.